PREFACE.

The following List enumerates certain accounts which have been transferred to the Public Record Office from the Office of the Clerk of the Pipe and from the Audit Office.

The practice of declaring accounts before the Lord High Treasurer of England or before the Chancellor of the Exchequer and two or more of the other Commissioners of the Treasury seems to have been introduced in the sixteenth century and established in the seventeenth. During the period of transition, accounts analogous to these were preserved in the Office of the King's Remembrancer of the Exchequer, and these still remain among the records of that Department in the Public Record Office.

When the system was in full operation, the practice was as follows:—Two copies of a particular account were prepared in the Audit Office, the one written on paper and the other on parchment. Both were sent to the Treasury and there declared before the Lord High Treasurer, or before the Chancellor of the Exchequer and two or more of the other Commissioners of the Treasury, and both were alike signed by the proper Auditor, or, in later times, by the Commissioners for auditing Public Accounts, and by the Lord High Treasurer, or the Commissioners of the Treasury as above. The account was at this stage registered at the Treasury in volumes known as "Declared Accounts" and "Auditors' States of Accounts," which are now preserved in the Public Record Office. The copy on paper was then returned to the Audit Office, and the copy on parchment was sent to the Office of the King's Remembrancer of the Exchequer, where it was enrolled in a series known as "Enrolments of Public Accounts" (Exchequer Q.R.). Thence it was forwarded to the Office of the Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer, where a brief abstract of it was entered among the "States and Views of Public Accounts." Finally it was forwarded to the Clerk of the Pipe, who, until the practice was abolished, enrolled an abridgment of it and retained the original.

Thus the Audit Office series of Declared Accounts should consist of documents on paper, and the Pipe Office series should consist of the duplicates on parchment. In some cases, however, accounts on parchment have found their way into the Audit Office.

Inasmuch as the information contained in these documents occurs several times over in the different series, and the making of the parchment copy was abolished by statute 1 & 2 George IV., c. 121, s. 7, it has not been thought necessary to preserve in the Public Record Office both these series of signed accounts, those Declared Accounts from the Pipe Office of which there are duplicates on paper later than the year 1714 have been transferred to the Bodleian Library under the Rules made in pursuance of the Public Record Office Act of 1877. The abridged enrolments made at the Pipe Office after 1714 have, moreover, been destroyed under the same Rules, as being no longer of any use.

The present volume contains a list of those Declared Accounts, signed as above mentioned, which have been preserved. The two sections of it were made by different officers of this Department at different times, and so they exhibit some discrepancies of system, but these discrepancies have not been considered sufficiently serious to necessitate a renumbering of the whole collection.
